LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL.

THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS,
OFFICE OF THE LIBRARIAN,
Washington, April 23, 1902.

MR. PRESIDENT: I have the honor to transmit herewith a list of authorities on Reciprocity, which has been compiled in the Bibliographical Division of the Library, and which, if printed, may be convenient for reference in the Senate.

Very respectfully,

HERBERT PUTNAM,
Librarian of Congress.

HON. WILLIAM P. FRYE,
President pro tempore of the Senate.

INTRODUCTION

The references in this list have been brought together to meet a present need. In the compilation no effort has been made to cover the entire literature of reciprocity, but to present a suggestive list of authorities. The references are largely to discussions of the subject.

The list contains also titles of some works dealing with international trade in general. For instance, Adams's "American economic supremacy;" Bastable's "Theory of international trade;" Davidson's "Commercial federation and colonial trade policy;" Chapman's "History of trade between the United Kingdom and the United States;" Rogers's "Economic interpretation of history;" with a few titles of general works upon the history of the tariff.

Mere compilations of commercial statistics are not as a rule referred to.

The effects of reciprocity on the trade relations of the United States as manifested in the experience with the reciprocity treaties to which the United States has been a party are exhibited in the Congressional documents entered in the list.

Treaties.—The texts of treaties since 1850 are given in Austin's "Reciprocity treaties and agreements between the United States and foreign countries since 1850," reprinted from the "Summary of commerce and finance for September, 1901."

The Congressional documents enumerated on pages 25-34 of this list give the legislative history of the reciprocity treaties or projects from the year 1815 to the present time. Speeches on the subject in the Congressional Globe and Congressional Record have not been noted.

The diplomatic negotiations in connection with the treaties of 1815 and 1818 with Great Britain are set forth in Lyman's "The diplomacy of the United States;" Wharton's "Digest of international law" devotes a section to the Hawaiian reciprocity treaty; and another to "Treaty regulations of reciprocity with Great Britain;" Foster's "A century of American diplomacy" considers the Canadian reciprocity treaty; Schuyler's "American diplomacy and the furtherance of commerce" gives a good survey of the commercial treaties from 1794 to 1884.

The Canadian reciprocity treaty of 1854 is the subject of a monograph by F. E. Haynes, forming American economic association publication, volume 7, No. 6.

The following give the Canadian view of the treaty: Gray's "Confederation; or, The political and parliamentary history of Canada;" Lawrence Oliphant's "Episodes of a life of adventure;" Mrs. Oliphant's "Memoir of Lawrence Oliphant;" Sir E. W. Watkin's "Canada and the United States."

The British and Canadian parliamentary papers contain the official record of the treaty negotiations, diplomatic correspondence, etc. (See under Canada and Great Britain in this list.)

The United States documents are indicated in the list of Government documents under the date of 1851-1854. The movement for renewal of the treaty in 1864 brought out several reports, etc., notably Derby's, named below. (See also in document list under date 1860-1869.)

Derby's "Preliminary report on the treaty of reciprocity," Washington, 1860, examined the effects of the operations under the treaty of 1854.

The negotiations for the renewal of the treaty in 1868-69 are set forth in "Canada. Parliamentary sessional papers, 1869, No. 47," and in the United States Government documents for that period. (See Gray's "Confederation," etc.)

Reciprocity with Spanish America.—The minutes and reports of the International American Conference, held at Washington in 1890, and Curtis's "Trade and transportation between the United States and Spanish America" afford valuable information on reciprocity with the American Republics.

Secretary Blaine's writings on the subject are noted in the list.

Consult further the "Bulletins of the Bureau of American Republics."

Among current discussions of reciprocity may be mentioned Kasson's "Reciprocity," Washington, 1901; John P. Young's "Economic aspects of reciprocity," in the Protectionist, vol. 13, pp. 80-91; Brooks Adams's "Reciprocity or the alternative," in the Atlantic Monthly, vol. 88, pp. 145-155; J. B. Osborne's "Expansion through reciprocity," in the Atlantic Monthly, vol. 88, pp. 721-731; G. B. Waldron's "A calm view of reciprocity," in the Chautauquan, vol. 34, pp. 237-242; E. J. Gibson's "Reciprocity and foreign trade," in the Forum, vol. 32, pp. 466-480; George Gunton's "Our industrial foreign policy," in Institute of Social Economics. Lecture bulletin, December 2, 1901, pp. 131-151; A. H. U. Colquhoun's "The reciprocity of to-day," in the Canadian Magazine, vol. 18, pp. 226-228; John Charlton's "Reciprocity with Canada," in the Forum, vol. 32, pp. 582-593, and A. B. Farquhar's "The manufacturer's need of reciprocity," in American Academy of Political and Social Science-Annals, vol. 19, pp. 21-39.
